The second and last garden party the season given at the White House the most notable social event of this administration and possessed interesting features never before seen at the

One of the early arriving guests was former President Taft, who laughed and chatted with the President and Mrs. Wilson, passing pleasant comments and expressing his delight at finding them standing just where he and Mrs. Taft stood to receive their visitors at the open air receptions. Count von Bernstorff and diplomats representing the countries in sympathy with Germany as well as many diplomats representing neutral countries were present, and with them hundreds of official and resident society.

The visitors entered by way of the east portice, which entailed a long walk through the flower-lined east wing, past the Italian garden and its riot of blossoms, and onto the lawn. Hundreds of those invited stopped near the White House before being received, to look over the scene.

Among the Notable Guests. Among the notable guests were former President Taft, the Vice President and Mrs. Marshall, Count von Bernstorff, ambassador of Germany: Baron Zwiedinek, Austrian charge d'affaires, with Mr. Stephen Hedry and Prince Alfred zu Hohenlohe-Schillingsfurst: the Turkish charge d'affaires and Mme. with Mr. Stephen Helger and from the whole roses and a load of deep the pink roses and a load of the pink roses

They are not being taken in a body. neither is it compulsory for them to go but those who want them are given passes to leave the camp for the trip. The official pilgrims are scheduled to g this afternoon, but the time has not bee fixed, neither has the committee been completed. Commandant Poe said this morning that she had appointed Mrs Samuel Murray as chairman of the committee, and told her to select her assist ants. This committee will carry to the tomb the wreath presented by Mrs. George Dewey, the wife of Admiral

In view of the fact that a great many of the students at the camp are from out of town, it is probable that the majority of them will take advantage of the leave of absence and go to Mount Vernon. There probably will be few left to take part in the classes this afternoon, and in antici-pation of this no lectures have been pro-vided in the lecture tent.

Opening the program, Shakespeare and Muse of Tragedy appeared together, followed by the bond scene of the "Merchant of Venice." Miss Lena Hitchcock impersonated the muse, and in the next scene R. D. Shepherd, known to the stage as R. D. McLean, was Shylock, with Hardee Kirkland as Antonio and Marlyn J. Brown as Bassaujo.

Again, later, Mr. Shepherd, who is regarded as one of the leading Shakespearean actors of the country, and who was invited by Miss Margaret Anglin to join as a co-star in the Shakespearean plays she gave in California recently, appeared in "The Taming of the Shrew." Here he was associated with Mrs. Shepherd in scenes which brought to mind many previous visions to the Washington public of these stars of stageland.
